

How Search-Friendly is Your Website

If you need assistance with any of these questions, you may want to Get Found! with iMedia Buzz. We ensure you follow the best practices for web writing and search-friendly techniques for small business websites.

1. Have you done a search and analysis for the best keywords your visitors would use to find your service/product?
2. Have you selected the top 5 keywords you'd like to use on your site?
3. Have you written a unique page title and description for every page on your site, using those keywords?
4. Have you segmented your content on each page using bold, keyword-rich subheadings for each topic on the page?
5. Have you used "anchor text" (actual keywords for what your visitors are linking to) for your links to other pages/sites instead of saying "click here?"
6. Have you listed your site in industry-specific directories on the internet and linked back to your web address?
7. Is your navigation logical and did you include a site map for your visitors to easily find pages on your website?
8. Is your content written in words that your visitors would use... not tech-speak?
9. Have you created a FREE Google Analytics account where you can monitor your traffic and keyword results?
10. Is there a compelling "call to action" which leads your visitors to your landing page where they will buy, subscribe, join your site?
